PART D

Source Based Questions

14. Read the following extract carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Rules for monks and nuns

These are some of the rules laid down in the Vinaya Pitaka:

When a new felt (blanket/rug) has been made by a bhikkhu, it is to be kept for (at least) six years. If after less than six years he should have another new felt (blanket/rug) made, regardless of whether or not he has disposed of the first, then - unless he has been authorised by the bhikkhus - it is to be forfeited and confessed.

In case a bhikkhu arriving at a family residence is presented with cakes or cooked grain-meal, he may accept two or three bowlfuls if he so desires. If he should accept more than that, it is to be confessed. Having accepted the two or three bowlfuls and having taken them from there, he is to share them among the bhikkhus. This is the proper course here.

Should any bhikkhu, having set out bedding in a lodging belonging to the sangha - or having had it set out - and then on departing neither put it away nor have it put away, or should he go without taking leave, it is to be confessed.

(14.1) Who were the bhikkhus and bhikkhunis?

(14.2) Explain any two rules framed for them.

(14.3) Why was the status of all the bhikkhus and bhikkhunis equal in the 'Buddha Sangha'?

Ans. (14.1) They are disciples of Budha. They are the monks and nuns living in the Sangha. Since they live on alms they are known as Bhikhus /Bhikhunis.

(14.2) When a new blanket is made by a bhikhu it is to be kept for at least six years regardless of the fact that he disposed of the first or not.

If a bhikhu arrives in a family and is presented with cakes or cooked grain, he should accept only 2 or 3 bowl full and share it among others.

(14.3) The Buddhist followers came from different backgrounds like kings, wealthy people, slaves and craftsman. But once in a Sangha they are treated equal because they have to shed their earlier social identities.

15. Read the following extract carefully and answer the questions that follow:

Classification of lands under Akbar

The following is a listing of criteria of classification excerpted from the Ain:

The Emperor Akbar in his profound sagacity classified the lands and fixed a different revenue to be paid by each. Polaj is land which is annually cultivated for each crop in succession and is never allowed to lie fallow. Parauti is land left out of cultivation for a time that it may recover its strength. Chachar is land that has lain fallow for three or four years. Banjar is land uncultivated for five years and more. Of the first two kinds of land, there are three classes, good, middling, and bad. They add together the produce of each sort, and the third of this represents the medium produce, one-third part of which is exacted as the Royal dues.

(15.1) Explain Polaj and Parauti lands.

(15.2) Why was Chachar land left uncultivated for three to four years?

(15.3) Why did Akbar classify the land into different categories?

Ans. (15.1) Polaj is a land which is annually cultivated for each crop succession. It is a fertile land.

Parauti is a land left out for cultivation for a time so as to regain fertility.

(15.2) Chachar land is left for 3 to 4 years without cultivation. This is kept as fallow so that this acquires fertility in this time.

(15.3) Akbar was a wise king and he knew that all the lands are not equally fertile so he divided the land into three categories-good, middling and bad.

16. Read the following extract carefully and answer the questions that follow:

“For the regulation of nuisances of every description”

By the early nineteenth century the British felt that permanent and public rules had to be formulated for regulating all aspects of social life. Even the construction of private buildings and public roads ought to conform to standardised rules that were clearly codified.

In his Minute on Calcutta (1803) Wellesley wrote:

It is a primary duty of Government to provide for the health, safety and convenience of the inhabitants of this great town, by establishing a comprehensive system for the improvement of roads, streets, public drains, and water courses, and by fixing permanent rules for the construction and distribution of the houses and public edifices, and for the regulation of nuisances of every description.

(16.1) Why did the British feel concerned on framing rules for the public?

(16.2) Who carried out the work of town planning after the departure of Lord Wellesley?

(16.3) What was the primary duty of the government?

Ans. (16.1) The British felt that haphazard growth is to be checked and rules are to be framed for private buildings, roads, water course etc.

(16.2) The work of town planning was carried out by the lottery committee after Lord Wellesley left India.

(16.3) The primary duty of the govt. was to provide health, safety and convenience of the inhabitants by establishing comprehensive system of roads, streets, public drains etc.
