SECTION – A
READING SKILLS (20 MARKS)

1. Read the following text.

(1) Technology is making advancements at a rapid rate but at the cost of a valued tradition-the crafts industry. The traditional crafts industry is losing a lot of its trained and skilled craftsmen. With that, the art of embellishing brass and copper utensils with fine engravings is also disappearing. The government has identified around 35 crafts as languishing craft.

(2) The speciality of handcrafted items is their design, an association with long traditions belonging to a specific region. The word 'handcrafted' does not imply the involvement of dexterous human fingers or an agile mind with a moving spirit anymore. Lessening drudgery, increasing production, and promoting efficiency have taken precedence. Labour-saving devices are taking the place of handcrafted tools, and this has led to a decline in traditional craftsmanship and a loss of cultural heritage associated with these artisanal practices.

(3) Mechanisation has made its way into everything - cutting, polishing, edging, designing etc. Ideally, the use of machinery should be negligible and the handicrafts should be made purely by hand with a distinguishable artistic appeal. However, with the exception of small-scale industries, the export units are mostly operated by machines. The heavily computerised designs contribute to a faster production at lower costs.

(4) Although mechanization of crafts poses a challenge to safeguarding traditional crafts, the artisans are lured with incentives in order to impart handicrafts training. Some makers do see machines as a time-saving blessing since they are now able to accomplish difficult and demanding tasks with relative ease. These machines might give a better finesse to these products but they don't stand out as handcrafted. Quantity has overtaken quality in this industry.

(5) A need to highlight the importance of the handmade aspect is required by both the government and private sectors, in order to amplify awareness and also support the culture of making handicrafts. A few artisans are still trying their best to rejuvenate and revive their culture and heritage but it's an uphill task competing with the machine-made goods. A multitude of artisans have changed their professions and are encouraging their progeny to follow suit. There are others who have stayed their ground but are clearly inclined towards buying machines.

(6) Nearly two decades ago, there were around 65 lakh artisans in the country. Three years ago, when the government started the process of granting a unique number to the artisans based on the Aadhaar card, 25 lakhs were identified. Loss of traditional crafts is clearly a worrying issue, but it stands to reason that forcing any artisan to follow old ways when concerns of livelihood overrule other considerations, is unfair.

Subject: Poor Sanitation of Government Hospital

I write to your esteemed self to express my deep concern towards the poor state of sanitation of City Government Hospital.

As you already know there is an outbreak of dengue, malaria and chikungunya in the city. My sister was also affected by malaria unfortunately. We took her to the City Government Hospital. As we reached the hospital, we did not find anyone at the emergency, an old nurse was napping in a corner. The doctor on duty was also not there. Above all, the hygiene and sanitation was horrible at the emergency room. The bedsheets and curtains were soiled and dirty. The dustbins were overflowing with used band-aids, empty medicine bottle, gauzes, etc. There were flies and mosquitoes everywhere. After half an hour's wait, the doctor came and asked us to admit my sister. But after witnessing the situation of the hospital, we could not gather the courage to admit my sister there. We had to take her to a private hospital. Seeing this poor state of affairs filled me with anguish and I felt so outraged at how our national resources and tax money is being wasted. Where will the poor go in the hour of need? I wish that the concerned authorities take notice of my concerns and take prompt action.

Thank you

Yours faithfully

Lokesh

5. A. The given pie chart shows the type of various electronic appliances used by average middle class families in old Gurugram. Laptop stands equal to washing machine and AC as it has become a necessary aid in children's education. To conclude the given chart, it clearly shows TV as the most preferred choice and microwave as the least preferred one. This has helped us in understanding the consumer preferences in case of electronic appliances based on their usability.

5. B. The graph shows a comparison in the preferences of subjects shown by boys and girls for college courses at the time of admission in the year 2020, in a big university in Delhi. The graph illustrates the changing choice of general preference of students according to their gender. Here, commerce subject shows an utmost interest from boys while humanities seem to be highly picked by girls. With humanities touching as high as 900 girls applicants choosing it over a mere 400 boys. Science is slightly better in terms of choice disparity with around 600 boys choosing it followed closely by 450 girls. But when it comes to commerce subject, the boys heavily outnumber the girls with a whopping 800 choosing it over a mere 200 girls. To look at the bigger picture, technical subjects seem to be the rage amongst boys while the girls' choices are somewhat evenly more scattered between science and humanities subjects. This means inclinations wise, boys prefer logic based line of study while girls are more inclined towards intellectual based line of study. Of course, subject choice aren't always a full story of what really makes boys and girls different in terms of acquiring knowledge. This graph, in conclusion, provides us a snippet of how society or other influences around these young minds make them choose certain line of subject over the idea and how gender also plays a role in this decision. It shows us the preference as well as the ongoing trend amongst boys and girls over the subjects they think will benefit them the most.

iii. The poem is a conversation between a girl named 'Anne' and the poet. The 'yellow hair' of Anne in the poem symbolises her youth and beauty and is a reminder that both are temporary and fleeting; the beauty of youth fades away with time, and death is inevitable.

iv. A. (1) is false, (2) is true and clearly inferred from the poem.

8. i. Baking was a profitable profession to be in the older days. Bread used to be (and still is) an integral part of every Goan tradition and festivals. Therefore, the fire in the baker's furnace never extinguished. As a result, the baker and his family never had to face the situation where they had to starve. Instead, the baker, his family and even the servants looked happy and prosperous.

ii. The tiger in the cage is just a diminished form of his original self. He paces up and down in the cage restlessly. He is confined in the narrow cell and keeps staring at the stars as if longing for freedom. He is helpless and draws pity for his condition.

iii. In his address Nelson Mandela sees a bright future of the country. He promises that under his presidency the country shall never face the oppression of one by another. 9. i. The significance of the balcony in the story 'The Midnight Visitor' is quite inevitable to the essence of the story. There was no balcony there in reality. He also tells Max that there are police at his door when there was knocking. The whole incident proved Ausable to be an alert and smart detective.

ii. Tehsildar sahib had asked Ramlal to send his daughters to school. Since he could not disobey Tehsildar sahib, Ramlal decided to send Bholi to school. iii. Hari Singh was a thief who had not much luck in his work recently. So, he approached Anil with the intention of robbing him, as he seemed to be an easy going and simple man. According to Hari, winning Anil's confidence was an easy task.

10. A. Valli was an eight-year-old girl who was born in a small village. She liked gazing at the hustle and bustle of the street and her most favourite part was the sight of a bus arriving and departing every hour. Valli was curious about the bus rides and used to listen to other people talking about their bus ride and dreamt of riding on bus herself. She asked those people questions about their experience of the ride so that she could gather information regarding the bus journey.

When Valli gets on the bus she acts confidently and behaved maturely. She tries to carry herself as an adult and refuses to take help from others. When the bus reached the town, she was observant and explored the town. Later she learns about the death of a cow and gets sad. She handled it with maturity and accepted death as a part of life.

B. Good morning, everyone.

Today, I'd like to talk about the play 'The Proposal'.

But before that, I would like to tell everyone that we are human beings, and jealousy, anger, etc. are the emotions that we all possess. But what really matters is how we rise above all these in our lives and worry about more important things.

The play "The Proposal" teaches us how anger and arguments can easily ruin a relationship. It is true to an extent that people usually give more importance to the unimportant issues forgetting their priorities. Just like how Lomov came to propose Natalya but due to their argument that matter was left unaddressed.

Thus, it becomes very important to set priorities in life. One must ignore the unimportant issues. It is a waste of time to have discussions over them. One should not pay too much attention on the trivialities. This energy can be saved on spending it over some useful and important issues that give a fruitful result.

To conclude my speech, I would say that we should understand that wasting time in meaningless conversations or doing things that just bring stress is unnecessary. So, stop spiralling and always come to the point, whatever or however you do.

11. A. The narrator, a veterinary surgeon, is a capable, compassionate and wise doctor. He handles Tricki properly which shows that he is sincere about his profession. He does not operate upon the dog unnecessarily and cures him by altering his diet and activities. He is a tactful person as he knew exactly how to convince Mrs. Pumphrey to hospitalize Tricki for a surgery. He understands and sympathises with Mrs. Pumphrey's mental state regarding Tricki's health therefore; to ease her suffering, Mr. Herriot lets her know that Tricki is recuperating. His decision to inform Mrs. Pumphrey to collect Tricki, supports his sensibilities even though he was tempted to keep Tricki as a permanent guest.

These are some of the values that each of us can inculcate in ourselves. Also, Mr. Herriot was in a profession, which he liked, therefore, he cared about his work and his patients. We too must pursue that field of work, which we deeply love and care about.

B. Matilda Loisel was a beautiful young woman who was born in a family of clerks. She believed that she deserved a life of luxuries and delicacies. Therefore, she was constantly unhappy and dissatisfied with the modest life she led. She had no choice but to marry a petty clerk, M. Loisel, who worked at the Board of Education and was completely opposite of her. She felt tortured by the lack of exquisite dinners, elegant dresses, jewels, etc.

Jeanne Forestier, a rich friend of hers, who Matilda went to school with, further added to her discomfort because Matilda envied her friend. Matilda borrowed a necklace from Mme. Forestier to wear with her dress on the evening of the ball. The precious piece of jewellery was there to appease her vanity, pretensions and false ego; it gave her the joy. The necklace was lost by her, and the Loisels had no other option but to replace the necklace. Thus, Matilda Loisel spiraled down to utter poverty. She had to do all sorts of menial jobs and suffered a needless sacrifice for ten years to pay off the debt. In these ten years, the adverse situation made her a strong, hard, crude woman of poor household. Therefore, she remained bitter and unhappy throughout her life.
